stroke and their loved ones, a return to "normal" life can be challenging. Occupational therapy offers many tools for survivors and their families to reclaim some normalcy, achieve fuller function and autonomy, and find new ways of doing things.

Zipoli offers the following tips for living well post-stroke:

- Practice patience and encourage autonomy.
- Set your environment up for success.
- Find a new routine that works for you.
- Find appropriate support (more than you think you need).
- Cultivate a positive attitude.
